RECOMMENDED ORDER OF SPECIAL DEPUTY

TO: Assistant Director,
Executive Director,
Reemployment Assistance Services
DEPARTMENT OF ECONOMIC OPPORTUNITY

This matter comes before the undersigned Special Deputy pursuant to the Petitioner's protest of the Respondent's determination dated December 7, 2011.

After due notice to the parties, a telephone hearing was held on September 27, 2012. The Petitioner's outhouse attorney appeared and called the Petitioner's vice president of the board as a witness. The Joined Party appeared and testified on her own behalf. A tax specialist II appeared and testified on behalf of the Respondent.

The record of the case, including the recording of the hearing and any exhibits submitted in evidence, is herewith transmitted. Proposed Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law were not received.

Issue:

Whether services performed for the Petitioner by the Joined Party constitute insured employment, and if so, the effective date of liability, pursuant to Section 443.036(19), 443.036(21); 443.1216, Florida Statutes.

Findings of Fact:

1. The Petitioner is a corporation incorporated for the purpose of running a university of higher learning.
2. The Joined Party provided services as a director of finance from September 2010, through September 2011.
3. The Joined Party approached the Petitioner for a teaching position. The Joined Party was offered a job working with the Petitioner's financial structure.

4. The Petitioner sought to hire the Joined Party as an independent contractor. The Joined Party sought to be hired as an employee. The Joined Party began work as a part time employee approximately two weeks later. The Joined Party was later changed to full time work.
5. The Joined Party was expected to report to work at the place of business from 10am through 5pm, Monday through Friday. The Joined Party was expected to be available for any special events. The Joined Party was required to attend weekly meetings.
6. The Joined Party was given a list of tasks to be performed. The Joined Party supervised other employees of the Petitioner. The Joined Party was supervised and directed in the work.
7. The Petitioner provided the Joined Party with an office, desk, telephone, computer, printer, and office supplies. The Petitioner provided an assistant for the Joined Party. The Joined Party had no expenses in conjunction with the work. The Joined Party was paid an hourly wage.
8. Either party could end the relationship at any time without liability.

Conclusions of Law:

9. The issue in this case, whether services performed for the Petitioner constitute employment subject to the Florida Unemployment Compensation Law, is governed by Chapter 443, Florida Statutes. Section 443.1216(1)(a)2., Florida Statutes, provides that employment subject to the chapter includes service performed by individuals under the usual common law rules applicable in determining an employer-employee relationship.
10. The Supreme Court of the United States held that the term "usual common law rules" is to be used in a generic sense to mean the "standards developed by the courts through the years of adjudication." United States v. W.M. Webb, Inc., 397 U.S. 179 (1970).
11. The Supreme Court of Florida adopted and approved the tests in 1 Restatement of Law, Agency 2d Section 220 (1958), for use to determine if an employment relationship exists. See Cantor v. Cochran, 184 So.2d 173 (Fla. 1966); Miami Herald Publishing Co. v. Kendall, 88 So.2d 276 (Fla. 1956); Magarian v. Southern Fruit Distributors, 1 So.2d 858 (Fla. 1941); see also Kane Furniture Corp. v. R. Miranda, 506 So.2d 1061 (Fla. 2d DCA 1987).
12. Restatement of Law is a publication, prepared under the auspices of the American Law Institute, which explains the meaning of the law with regard to various court rulings. The Restatement sets forth a nonexclusive list of factors that are to be considered when judging whether a relationship is an employment relationship or an independent contractor relationship.
13. 1 Restatement of Law, Agency 2d Section 220 (1958) provides:
 - (1) A servant is a person employed to perform services for another and who, in the performance of the services, is subject to the other's control or right of control.
 - (2) The following matters of fact, among others, are to be considered:
 - (a) the extent of control which, by the agreement, the business may exercise over the details of the work;
 - (b) whether or not the one employed is engaged in a distinct occupation or business;
 - (c) the kind of occupation, with reference to whether, in the locality, the work is usually done under the direction of the employer or by a specialist without supervision;
 - (d) the skill required in the particular occupation;
 - (e) whether the employer or the worker supplies the instrumentalities, tools, and the place of work for the person doing the work;
 - (f) the length of time for which the person is employed;

- (g) the method of payment, whether by the time or by the job;
- (h) whether or not the work is a part of the regular business of the employer;
- (i) whether or not the parties believe they are creating the relation of master and servant;
- (j) whether the principal is or is not in business.

14. Comments in the Restatement explain that the word “servant” does not exclusively connote manual labor, and the word “employee” has largely replaced “servant” in statutes dealing with various aspects of the working relationship between two parties. In Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services v. Department of Labor & Employment Security, 472 So.2d 1284 (Fla. 1st DCA 1985) the court confirmed that the factors listed in the Restatement are the proper factors to be considered in determining whether an employer-employee relationship exists. However, in citing La Grande v. B&L Services, Inc., 432 So.2d 1364, 1366 (Fla. 1st DCA 1983), the court acknowledged that the question of whether a person is properly classified an employee or an independent contractor often cannot be answered by reference to “hard and fast” rules, but rather must be addressed on a case-by-case basis.
15. The evidence presented in this case reveals that the Petitioner exercised control over where, when, and how the work was performed. The Joined Party was required to follow a set schedule at the Petitioner’s place of business. The Joined Party was supervised and directed by the Petitioner. The Joined Party was required to attend weekly staff meetings.
16. The Petitioner provided the work space and all materials needed to perform the work. The Joined Party had no expenses in conjunction with the work.
17. The Joined Party was paid an hourly rate. Payment by time tends to indicate an employer-employee relationship.
18. The Joined Party provided services for approximately one year. Such a length of time does not demonstrate a temporary relationship between the parties.
19. A preponderance of the evidence presented in this case reveals that the Petitioner exercised sufficient control over the Joined Party as to create an employer-employee relationship between the parties.

Recommendation: It is recommended that the determination dated December 7, 2011, be AFFIRMED.

Respectfully submitted on December 3, 2012.

KRIS LONKANI, Special Deputy
Office of Appeals
